

Rusk Tells West:
No War Rest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk cautioned Friday that the West has no reason to relax because of differences between the Soviet Union and Communist China.

On the contrary, he wrote, the dispute may even have the effect of deepening, rather than moderating the cold war.

Rusk, in an article written for the magazine Nation's Business, said the conflict does not affect the basic Communist objective: The extension of Communist control throughout the world.

Thresher Split
At One Point

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—A Navy captain said Friday night underwater pictures and other evidence appear to indicate the sunken nuclear attack submarine Thresher is in one piece with the proper contours intact but badly split in at least one point.

Memorial Day
Toll Hits 159

The number of persons killed in traffic accidents during the Memorial Day observance set a record for the one-day holiday.

The final count of highway fatalities showed 159 lives were lost during the 30-hour period that began at 6 p.m. Wednesday, local time, and ended at midnight Thursday.

The toll far exceeded the National Safety Council's estimate that 90 to 100 persons would die in traffic accidents during the 30-hour span.

Nuclear Fallout
May Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nuclear fallout levels probably will be heavier this year than last but exposure of still too slight to cause concern, the Federal Radiation Council reported Friday.

The council blamed the increased fallout levels largely on Soviet nuclear testing which dumped large amounts of fallout materials into the atmosphere last year.

Germany Passes
French Treaty

BOSS, Germany (AP) — The West German Parliament gave its final approval Friday to the treaty signed in January by President Charles de Gaulle of France and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. The document seeks to end the centuries-old hostility between the French and Germans.

JFK-Macmillan
Test Ban Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Kennedy-Macmillan test-ban appeal to Premier Khrushchev was reported Friday to have proposed a scientific study to determine whether on-the-spot inspections are needed to detect atomic explosions.

The messages from President Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan to the Soviet leader, delivered in Moscow Friday, mark a continuing Western effort for a breakthrough in the long-deadlocked issue of a nuclear test ban.

Common Market
Splits On Britain

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Western Europe's Common Market split sharply Friday on whether it should work closely with Britain in the hope that Britain one day will be able to join.

France opposed such cooperation. The other five nations, led by West Germany, pressed for it hard, but in vain.

Ludwig Erhard, the man expected to be West Germany's next chancellor, left the meeting of market cabinet ministers saying: "I don't give up hope, but no agreement was possible today."

Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market Friday broke out of a narrow range which has confined it for a couple of weeks and advanced substantially to 1963 highs. Trading was active. Volume was 469 million shares compared with 435 million Wednesday. The exchanges were closed Thursday for Memorial Day.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 4.46 to a 1963 closing peak of 726.96.

Congressman Walter Dies Of Leukemia

Kennedy Salutes His Faith, Courage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Francis E. Walter, veteran Pennsylvania Democrat who headed the House Committee on Un-American Activities, died Friday. He was 69.

President Kennedy, who visited Walter in Georgetown University Hospital earlier this month, said in a statement:

"I am saddened to hear of the death of Congressman Francis E. Walter. When I saw him on my recent visit to the hospital he was facing the future with the same faith and courage he had shown throughout his life. He will be greatly missed in the House of Representatives and all his friends mourn his passing."

Death was attributed to leukemia—cancer of the blood. Jack Yobe, an aide to the congressman, said death came at the hospital at 6 p.m. (EDT) and that Walter had been in a coma most of the day. He had been confined to the hospital for several weeks.

Walter represented the 15th congressional district, which includes Monroe, Carbon, Northampton, and Pike Counties. Funeral arrangements will be announced today by the Cauler Funeral Home, Arlington, Virginia.

Dr. Darrell C. Crain, his physician, announced on May 22 that tests showed Walter was suffering from leukemia. Even then, Walter—known to his colleagues and friends as "Tad"—said: "With the help of God and my physicians, I hope to sufficiently recover and to resume my congressional duties."

See photographs of Walter in Monroe County and story of his political life on Page 7.

Rep. Edwin T. Willis, D-La., is in line to succeed Walter as chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities. Rep. Clyde Doyle, D-Calif., who had been second-ranking Democrat to Walter, died earlier this year.

Walter's death leaves the House lineup at 276 Democrats and 177 Republicans with two vacancies.

Dies In Coma

An aide, Jack Yobe, said the veteran Pennsylvania Democrat died at 6 p.m. (EDT) after being in a coma most of the day. Death was attributed to leukemia, cancer of the blood. He had been confined to the hospital for several weeks.

Dr. Darrell C. Crain, his physician, announced on May 22 that tests showed Walter was suffering from leukemia. Even then, Walter said:

"With the help of God and my physicians, I hope to sufficiently recover and to resume my congressional duties."

Troubled by a respiratory ailment, the white-haired Walter entered the hospital Jan. 21 for a checkup. He underwent a series of tests and was described by his doctors as greatly improved.

The trouble recurred, however, and Walter returned to the hospital a few weeks later. President Kennedy paid him a personal call one afternoon.

Walter, whose home was in eastern Pennsylvania, was chairman of the House committee on Un-American activities and co-author of the controversial McCarran-Walter Immigration Act.

Walter once told reporters the 1961-62 Congress would be his last. He said that because of an old respiratory ailment he would retire after completing 30 years in the House.

However, early in 1963, Walter announced that physicians would permit him to run again.

Walter's election to a 16th consecutive term last Nov. 6 set a record for Pennsylvania Democrats. It also returned him to Congress eighth in seniority in the entire House.

Outspoken Man

A frank and outspoken man, Walter nevertheless was adept in handling men and party matters. Skilled in parliamentary matters, he often served in the Speaker's chair when controversial legislation came before the House.

He was reelected this year as Democratic caucus chairman. Walter also was chairman of the Democratic patronage committee in the House.

Walter was a second-ranking Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee and headed a couple of its subcommittees.

He presided over hearings of the committee on un-American activities in probing reported Communist activities in the teaching profession, the movie industry and other fields.

The job was one that Walter originally did not want. In 1961 he told educators critical of the operations of his committee:

"I'm just doing a job. And it's a stinking job, one I don't relish."

But one of the things that makes it more difficult is the opposition of those who have more at stake in this fight than anyone else."

Many attacks also were leveled at Walter for his part in enacting the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act, regarded by some as restrictive in its policies. However, as far back as 1950, Walter had sponsored legislation to remove racial barriers to naturalization.

More recently he called for abolition of the nationality divisions of both the Democratic and Republican national committees. He deplored what he termed the "divisive influence of political units that cater to the perpetuation of minority groups and interests."

Walter took an interest in resettling European refugees following the uprooting of millions of people from their homes in World War II.

He helped found, and received numerous awards for his work with, the Intergovernmental Committee on European Migration and attended its annual meetings at Geneva, Switzerland.

Elected 1933

Elected to the house first in 1933, Walter sponsored flood control bills after the great floods of 1935 in Pennsylvania and in 1936 his bill creating the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge Commission was enacted.

The son of a physician, Walter was born May 26, 1894, at Easton, Pa. He attended school there and at Mercersburg, Pa., Academy and Princeton, N.J., Preparatory School.

He attended Lehigh University for two years and received a Bachelor of Arts degree at George Washington University here. Walter served with the Naval Air Force in World War I and was graduated from Georgetown Law School in 1919.

He opened a law office at Easton and in 1928 became Northampton County solicitor, a post he held until his election to Congress five years later. Walter was a bank executive in Easton and in Philadelphia.

He is survived by his wife, the former Mae Doyle, and a daughter, Mrs. William Mach, both of Washington.

David Lawrence

Informed of Rep. Walter's death in Pittsburgh, former Gov. David L. Lawrence said "I have lost one of my oldest friends in Democratic politics."

U. S. Rep. Francis E. Walter

Reaction Of Area Leaders:

Walter's Death A Loss For Nation

STROUDSBURG — A deep sense of loss was expressed by most area residents and politicians yesterday in their reaction to the death of Rep. Francis E. Walter.

Walter, an Easton Democrat, represented the 15th Congressional District for 30 years until his death yesterday in Georgetown Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Typical of the comments was that of State Sen. William Z. Scott of Lancaster, a Republican, who said:

"Pennsylvania and the entire country have lost an outstanding citizen and a very fine congressman. Over the years, Tad Walter has proved to have his district, state and nation close to his heart. He made every attempt to be of service to the people he represented."

regardless of political affiliation. His passing is a deep shock to us all and he will be sorely missed.

State Rep. Van D. Yetter of Marshalls Creek said: "It's going to be a great loss to the community, the entire country and the world for he was actually a world figure. He was one of the outstanding congressmen in the country."

Hal H. Harris, former Democratic mayor of Stroudsburg, said: "I can truly say that he was the greatest representative in Congress this district has had in my lifetime and he did more for the people in the 1930s and 1940s, assisting me in WPA projects. It will be a long time before we'll have another one."

Collins Van Gorden, commander of George N. Kemp Post 346, American Legion, said: "All I can say is that it's a shame the country has lost a man of that caliber. I think that's all anyone can say."

Willard L. Quick, Monroe County commissioner, said: "The world and this nation has lost a man that will take years to search and find another like him. I lost a very dear and near friend. He was without a doubt one of the most loyal men I have ever known."

Montgomery F. Crowe, Stroudsburg, former state senator from this district, and a Walter election foe of bygone years, said: "I just heard the news on the television. We were political rivals, he a Democrat and me a Republican. But he was without a doubt, a great citizen. He had a large Republican following in his district."

To find a man to replace him will be a big job for each of the parties."

Leo Achterman, a Stroudsburg attorney and former state representative, remarked: "The news of Rep. Walter's death comes as a shock even though it has been expected. The state, nation and the world has lost a great statesman. Many of us here in the area have lost a true friend."

W. C. G. Peterson, Monroe County Democratic party chairman, commented: "The death of Congressman Walter comes as a great shock. Tad Walter was more than a congressman, he was a world statesman, and a friend to the people of the world. His leadership will be missed by all."

Charles M. Bruch of Stroudsburg, associate editor, Public

Utility Fortnightly, Washington, D. C.; member of Walter's staff 1962 to 1966 in Washington said:

"It is difficult, after having worked for a long period, with an outstanding public figure to reconcile the image of the man, as the public knew him with the high-good humored employer that I saw five days a week for six years. The man I knew was a diligent worker — but always one who was ready for a laugh. He loved to tell the story of my trying to sell a German car to a gentleman in the office who turned out to be Henry Ford, Jr."

Lawrence Siverwood, commander of Thomas P. Lahbert Post 2540, Veterans of Foreign Wars, said: "He was a great American and he'll be hard to replace. He helped a lot of people."

Norbert Ryan Sr., of Mountaineer, said: "Many people are aware that Rep. Walter recently nominated our twin sons, Norbert and John, to the U.S. Naval Academy. They will start school in September. The twins did not know Rep. Walter personally but it is our hope that they may carry on in his honor for many years."

John Brislin, former Monroe County Democratic chairman, of Stroudsburg RD 2, now a member of the State Artillery Board said: "Although the seriousness of the congressman's condition has been known for a long time his passing comes as a great shock to me and to an indebted nation. This was a statesman the like of whom are too few. His death leaves a great void in the halls of Congress."

Pope Fights At Death's Door

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John XXIII, at the threshold of death, astonished his doctors early Saturday by coming out of a coma and speaking in blessing to those around his sickbed.

The pontiff's stout heart waged a stubborn struggle for life. The Vatican, announcing the development, held out no hope for recovery but reported the pontiff's doctors surprised that he could exhibit such vitality.

The Vatican Press Office quoted the Pope as saying: "I am the resurrection and the life, Jesus! Jesus!"

Out Of Coma

The Pope, 81, brought to the door of death by peritonitis, which aggravated a condition already weakened by hemorrhaging from an internal stomach growth, came out of the coma after four hours and recognized his three brothers and widowed sister who were in his sickroom for the agonizing vigil. He also recognized prelates around him, a Vatican broadcast said, and blessed all those present.

The Vatican Press Office said he had addressed those in the room by name individually and thanked his doctors.

He also sipped some coffee, the press office said.

The Vatican radio announced at 5:30 a.m. (12:30 a.m. EDT, Saturday) that there were no developments in the Pope's condition.

It indicated it felt the immediate urgency had passed.

The Vatican Press Office and Radio based their reports on news supplied by Archbishop Angelo Dell'Aquila, Vatican substitute secretary of state who was in the room at the time.

After he gave the news, Archbishop Dell'Aquila celebrated Mass in a room next to the Pope's bedroom.

Death Near

to pray, still feeling that death was near.

Vatican Radio itself had said only an hour earlier that doctors confirmed "the slow approach of the inevitable event."

The Pope's heart was still resisting more than 24 hours after his gravest crisis had struck.

A short time earlier the Vatican Radio had said: "Every nun hope of a comeback was excluded."

The Vatican Radio indicated the Pope had lapsed back into coma, it said: "On the condition of the Holy Father, there is nothing new regarding its gravity, notwithstanding the very brief regaining of senses which took place about 3 a.m. (9 p.m. EST Friday), allowing him to recognize and bless his own relatives and to invoke repeatedly the holy names of Jesus."

About the brief regaining of consciousness, the judgment of the doctors remains what it was previously, that is, confirming the extreme gravity of the moment."

A Vatican source said the period of consciousness had continued for less than an hour and the Pope then lapsed into alternating periods of unconsciousness and clarity.

"Despite the long agony which has lasted almost four hours with the loss of consciousness and difficulty in breathing," the Vatican Radio said, "the pulse remains strong and regular. The strong fiber of the Pope resists the extreme assaults of his sickness."

The Italian use the word agony to describe the final throes before death, and it does not necessarily mean pain is involved.

Unconscious

The Pope was reported periodically unconscious through out much of the long nighttime vigil at his deathbed.

The stout heart of the pontiff battled stubbornly with death, but Vatican officials appeared to have given up hope from the moment the Pope slipped from pain into unconsciousness.

The Pope was brought to the edge of death by peritonitis, which aggravated his condition, already severely weakened by an internal stomach growth, which could have been a tumor or cancer. This had caused bad hemorrhaging.

At 1:45 a.m. Saturday (7:45 p.m. EST Friday) the Vatican Press Office said the Pope's breathing was becoming labored. Oxygen had been administered as early as Friday afternoon.

But the spiritual ruler of the world's half billion Roman Catholics clung to life. His heart was reported beating strongly 24 hours after his gravest crisis had struck.

Throughout a long, tense day the supreme pontiff of the Catholic Church hovered between life and death while the world outside joined in prayers for him.

In Agony

At 10:30 p.m. (4:30 p.m. EST) Friday the Vatican Radio said the Pope had "entered into agony," the final throes before death. It said "he suffers no more—he is passing away."

Those who saw him on his cast-iron bed in the apostolic palace said his face was serene and that he did not show his suffering.

A half-hour later Vatican press officials reported the Pope's pulse still was good and his breathing calm. They said he might live for hours.

The pontiff, who had described himself as "very ready" for death, was brought to its threshold by peritonitis that struck when he was already weakened by an internal stomach growth.

The dread infection came suddenly after Thursday midnight, bringing his doctors rushing to his bedside. Hours before they had reported him rallying strongly.

Shortly after noon Friday the Vatican revealed the Pope's perilous condition. About the same time he requested and received extreme unction.

Thousands Pray

In Rome people went by the thousands to St. Peter's Square. Through the afternoon, through the golden Roman sunset, through the night they stood in the square and occasionally knelt on the cobblestones to pray.

Vatican officials reported they had administered oxygen to bolster him and had given him tranquilizers to ease his pain.

Bit by bit the reports told a story of decreasing hope.

But as he lived into the new day, officials said, Pope John was resisting and perhaps could go on for hours.

Florida Negroes Win Right To Picket, March Peacefully

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A state judge dismissed contempt of court charges against 22 Negro segregation protesters Friday and recognized their right to picket and protest peacefully.

The decision by Circuit Court Judge Ben C. Willis came after a conference with attorneys for the Negroes and the two white theaters which had been the target of the demonstrations for the past 10 evenings.

In a statement later, Tobias Simon of Miami, attorney for most of the Negroes, told the group which packed the 45-seat courtroom: "We have achieved a great and sweeping victory, a tremendous victory. This is the first and only time in a Southern state has the right of a Negro to picket a white establishment been recognized and put into an order."

"I predict it (the protests) will be effective and the day of segregated theaters in Tallahassee will come to end very shortly."

"We now demand that the theater doors be opened to all, regardless of race, color or creed."

In closing, Simon urged the Negroes to obey the judge's order calling for peaceful picketing and limiting pickets to 18 before the Florida Theater and 10 before the State Theater, where the sidewalk is narrower.

Other restrictions the court placed upon picketing included: No derogatory or defamatory signs or signs urging boycott of the theater.

No interference with the operations of the theater.

No blocking of the doors or sidewalk.

No entering the theater without permission.

Judge Willis issued his restraining order Thursday upon request of the manager of the two white theaters.

Two hours later Negroes massed before the theater quietly. They did not block the door, but they picketed on the sidewalk with "freedom" signs. Included in the group were 33 juveniles under age 17 and Harold D. Taylor of Tallahassee, a white Florida State University sophomore.

There was no violence but the more than 200 demonstrators were arrested after a warning, then released either upon identification by school officials or upon $100 bonds.

Three kept overnight for lack of identification or bond were released from the contempt charges Friday after they had told the judge they were unaware of his order and promised to obey it.

One, a waiter, said he was a spectator caught up in the mass arrests.

When Circuit Court opened nearly 500 students marched in a line five blocks long from the university campus a mile away and jammed the courtroom.

Shortly before leaving the campus, a student leader told the group: "If the court ruling is favorable, we will consider before taking further action. If it is not, demonstrations will continue. Be confident."

About an hour after the first mass arrests Thursday some 200 Negroes gathered on the university campus and marched toward town.

When the marchers ignored orders to halt, the police broke up the demonstration with tear gas.

Mayor Sam Teague said 37 had been arrested in this group and charged with unlawful assembly and refusal to obey a police order. They will be tried in City Court Monday.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Nehemiah 8; Psalms 119: 119.

When Ezra the scribe came from Babylon to Jerusalem for the second time, in 445 B. C., he found the Jewish religion corrupted. Voluntarily the people gathered before the Water Gate and asked Ezra to read them God's law.—Nehemiah 8:1.

So Ezra brought the great book and read it to the people. He stood on a wooden pulpit they had made, with 12 priests flanking him. The people stood before him and listened intently, and the priests helped Ezra explain the law.—Nehemiah 8:2-8.

The people were so profoundly affected by this first study of their law in many years that they wept, ashamed for their sins. Ezra told them not to weep but to rejoice, for the Word of God would give them strength and joy.—Nehemiah 8:9-12.

In accordance with the law, the people renewed their religion. They celebrated a feast as God had commanded through Moses, by building booths for themselves of wild branches from the hills.—Nehemiah 8:13-18. GOLDEN TEXT: Psalm 119:8.

Religion Today:

No Other Pope Has Been So Popular

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

Not long ago, the story goes, an Orangutan—a typical champion of the North Atlantic Ocean—was watching television and looking sadder and sadder as he watched.

Asked what was wrong, he replied glumly: "Well, I'm watching the Pope, and I'm afraid I'm getting to like him."

It has been part of the greatness of Pope John XXIII that no matter what anyone's past reaction to Rome, people of virtually all persuasions have liked him. No other Pope in modern history has been so popular.

"The people's Pope," Methodist Bishop Fred Pierce Carson, of Philadelphia, once called him. "He has opened the door to take us all out of our isolation."

Thus, even more than his personal magnetism, has been the towering achievement of Pope John. By force of his vision and his deeds, he has cracked the thick, centuries-old wall between Rome and the rest of Christendom.

"The Pope of unity" is a common, and apt, designation.

As a result of his innovations, new ties have formed with other churches, and they have entered into real conversations, not only through the Second Vatican Council but rippling out from it in cities and towns around the globe.

"In our lifetime we have witnessed developments that one would have considered almost impossible only a few years ago," says the Rev. Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, general secretary of the World Council of Churches.

When the portly, little Angelo Giuseppe Roncalli first became Pope Pius XII in 1958, he gave a brief talk that hinted at the course he would follow. He said he might not conform to the usual non-Catholic image of the papacy.

"The fact is that the new Pope, through the happenings of life, is like the son of Jacob who, meeting with his brothers, showed them the tenderness of his heart and bursting into tears, said, 'I am Joseph, your brother,'" he added.

And that is how it has been ever since. Every believer was a "beloved brother."

Not only did he set up the Vatican Secretariat for Christian Unity, providing the first official liaison between Rome and Protestantism since the Reformation, but he said both sides had been at fault in the past and should seek mutual ways back together.

He began sending Catholic observers to Protestant-Orthodox gatherings and also received a succession of Protestant and Orthodox callers, and sat down in warm, informal conversation with them.

"By Way of Holy Remembrance" will be the theme of his message before the merged congregation which combined two churches last year.

Dr. Fulmer will also participate in the Love Feast service at 8 p.m. at which the District President, from Bethlehem, will be the speaker.

COOPERATION OF FAITHS

The nursery teacher is Methodist, the prekindergarten teachers are Mormon and Episcopalian, the kindergarten teacher is a Baptist and her two assistants are Mormon and Catholic.

Protestant observers at the Vatican Council.

An insight into his attitude was provided early in his reign, in the spring of 1959, when he was visited by Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America.

I have an unpublished account of their conversation.

"My wish," the Pope said at one point, "would be to prove myself a forerunner for the coming of church unity."

The archbishop: "In what sense do you understand unity?"

The Pope: "Unity is what which can be effected only by and through love."

The archbishop: "Therefore I presume that unity in your mind cannot be understood in terms of submission of each church to the Roman Catholic Church?"

Today's Lesson:

The Law Of The Lord

By N. SPEER JONES

THE setting for the first selection from today's lesson is Jerusalem in 444 B.C. Ezra, the scribe, has come on his second expedition to the city from Babylon. On his first expedition, 14 years earlier, he led nearly 2,000 of the exiles back to their home. Now he has come again, to find the Jewish religion and laws deeply corrupted.

Ezra was a great authority on the Jewish law, the most famous of the scribes, or legal authorities. He was evidently vastly respected in his day, for the people of Jerusalem assembled voluntarily "as one man" to hear him read and interpret the Scriptures, which at that time consisted mostly of the law.

This reading took two days. Its consequences were very impressive. The people burst into tears, probably through recognition of their own sins and through the joy of seeing once more the Way of God, which they had been apart from for so many years.

Furthermore, this reading brought about re-establishment of the Jewish religion, to the extent that many today regard him as the second founder of the nation.

The description of Ezra's reading is vivid; it established the pattern for the sermons we hear today.

Psalm 119 predates the story of Ezra by more than 500 years for it was written by David. It consists of two definite and separate parts, the first (verses 1-6) dealing with God's revelation of Himself in nature and the second (verses 7-11), dealing with God's revelation of Himself in His Word. The last three verses are in the form of a prayer, for after contemplation of God's law, one is bound to realize and be appalled by his own shortcomings.

Psalm 119 is the longest psalm in the entire book. It has a special interest in that it is one of the so-called Alphabetical Psalms. In these psalms, each verse begins with a successive letter of the Hebrew alphabet. They are Psalms 25, 34, 37, 111, 112 and 145.

The 119th, while built on the same general idea, is different from all the others in that the progression goes by section rather than by verse, and within each section, each verse begins with the same letter.

Such a complex work of poetry could only be worked out by a man who had a great deal of time to spend on the project. We do not know who the author was, beyond the fact that he appears to have been a great scholar and respecter of the law, and that, apparently, was a Levite, for the phrase he uses, "Thou art my portion," is used in the Scriptures about the Levites.

The Word of God is described as the word, the law, the commandments, the statutes, the precepts, the judgments and the testimonies, each with a different shade of meaning.

One Injured As Soda Pop Truck Upsets

LEHIGHTON — One person was injured when a tractor-trailer loaded with empty bottles upset on the Northeast Extension of the Pennsylvania Turnpike yesterday morning.

The accident, three miles north of the Pocono Interchange, blocked the southbound lanes of the toll road for several hours.

Edward Sharp, 37, Camden, N. J., suffered injuries to the right shoulder and neck and scalp cuts and was admitted to Wilkes-Barre General Hospital.

State Police of the turnpike detail said Sharp was a passenger in the tractor-trailer driven by James Wells, 42, Camden.

Fell Asleep
Troopers said Wells apparently fell asleep at the wheel of the northbound truck, crossed the medial strip and upset in the southbound lanes.

The cargo of empty bottles was strewn over the roadway and the truck blocked both southbound lanes until another tractor-trailer was halted by troopers and used to drag the vehicle out of one of the lanes so traffic could pass.

Labor Plays Key Role In Israel

UNITY HOUSE — Ben-Zion Ilan, special representative of Histadrut to the United States, discussed the nature of the new social and economic profile of Israel at a meeting of the American Trade Union Council for Histadrut conference on Israel and American Labor here yesterday.

Histadrut, the Israel Labor Federation, has approximately 800,000 members.

Ilan's talk was based largely on philosophic and economic achievements of Histadrut in the past 40 years. He said Israel has a mixed economy in which labor cooperatives play a key role.

As an example, he said about 40 per cent of Israel's industry is owned and operated by public bodies. He said Histadrut considers the absorption as one of its paramount objectives.

Histadrut is an "open house" for the new immigrants who absorb is not only a matter of institutionalized assistance, but of a heart-to-heart relationship between established citizens and newcomers, he added.

Medical Program
He said one of the outstanding examples of mutual aid is the medical program developed by Histadrut which covers 70 per cent

Rt. 80 Section Near Completion

STROUDSBURG — The section of Interstate Route 80, the Keystone Shortway, between Stroudsburg and Bartonsville should be completed by the end of July, A. Victor Cesare, district engineer for the State Highways Dept., said yesterday.

Route 209 Open To Traffic

SNYDERVILLE — Route 209 from Snyderville to Stroudsburg is open to traffic.

Morgan Brown, superintendent of James D. Morrissey, Inc., and Morgan Brown, assistant superintendent of Monroe County Highways, Department of Pennsylvania Highways, in a joint statement yesterday said that Rte. 209 from Stroudsburg to Snyderville has been opened to traffic.

Butz said, "All detour signs are down and a stop sign has been placed on Rte. 12 at the intersection with Rte. 209 in Snyderville. Now Rte. 209 is a through highway."

Route 12 from Snyderville to Bartonsville has been a detour route during construction work on Rte. 209.

Route 209 was closed in January for construction of a bridge and alterations in the road at two other points.

Brown urged drivers to proceed through the area with caution because periodically heavy equipment and men will be working near the highway to complete other phases of construction in the area.

Cesare said paving of the section should begin within the next week or so. When completed, it will enable motorists to drive from the Delaware River Joint Toll Bridge to Crescent Lake on the limited-access highway. Three sections from beyond Bartonsville to Crescent Lake are already completed.

Work on a section of the Penn-Can Highway from Crescent Lake north should start within the next month and is expected to be completed by the latter part of next summer, the highways engineer said.

Work is expected to start in July on Legislative Route 169, Section 14-B, between the Penn-Can Highway and Route 611 at Mt. Pocono and it is expected to be completed by late next summer.

Three Projects

Three projects are expected to be opened to traffic by the end of October. They are Legislative Route 796, Sections 2 and 3, which will connect Route 115 with Interstate 80 at Bartonsville; Legislative Route 164, Section 9, which will carry traffic from Routes 115 and 209 to a connection with Interstate 80 at Stroudsburg, and Legislative Route 164, Section 10, which will connect Routes 209 and 115.

Under Construction
A section of the Keystone Shortway from just east of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to the vicinity of Blakeslee is currently under construction and is expected to be completed next summer.

Two other sections, bringing the highway eastward to Crescent Lake are expected to be advertised and under construction this year, Cesare said that if the expectations are realized, they are expected to be completed by late 1964 or early 1965.

Also in this category is a section of the highway west of the present construction which ends just east of the Luzerne County line.

Cesare emphasized that the schedules for all work are tentative and are subject to revision due to inclement weather, labor disputes or other factors.

Ballots, Votes Rejected

STROUDSBURG — Three absentee ballots and votes for commissioners and township supervisors were turned down by the Monroe County Election Board yesterday.

President Judge Fred W. Davis and Associate Judges Harry Hamblin and Walter Heckman opened 38 absentee and three military ballots yesterday in courtroom two.

The board ruled out a ballot from the Third Ward of East Stroudsburg on the grounds that the voter did not enclose with the ballot his signed affidavit.

A second ballot was rejected by the board because the ballot was only voted on one side and there were votes cast. This was the result of a clerk sending out the ballot without looking at both sides to make certain it was in correct order.

A third ballot was nixed on the grounds that voter's declaration was not included with the ballot. The ballot was from the Third Ward of Stroudsburg.

Of the remaining three ballots rejected one was from the Middle District of Stroud Township and the others from Western District of Tobyhanna Township.

The voter from Stroud Township voted for all the candidates for commissioner on the Republican party. A voter was allowed to vote for only two.

Two ballots from Tobyhanna Township were declared too good because the individuals voted for two supervisors. Only one vote was allowed for a township supervisor.

Second Attack On Polio In County Tomorrow

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Medical Society's battle against polio enters its second stage tomorrow as Sabin vaccine will again be distributed throughout the county.

The initial distribution was made May 5 when Type I vaccine was distributed to approximately 70 per cent of the county's population.

Tomorrow's distribution is extremely important, according to Dr. Hans-Helmut Brehm, in charge of the program for the medical society.

Virtually all the polio which occurs in the eastern United States is caused by Strain III which is the strain against which Type II vaccine, which is to be distributed tomorrow acts.

Dr. Brehm emphasized that the procedure will be exactly the same as for the initial distribution on May 5.

Fill Registration Form
Families having children are urged to fill out the registration form in today's Daily Record and bring it with them to the nearest distribution point.

Anyone over six weeks old is eligible to receive the vaccine. Children, particularly should be immunized. All persons in a family who plan to receive vaccine together should be listed on the registration form, not merely those who are under 21 years of age.

A nominal charge of 25 cents a dose is made to help defray the cost of the program, but the medical society has emphasized that no one will be refused because he cannot pay the fee.

As was done before, special telephone operators will be on duty to answer any questions concerning the vaccine. The information may be secured by dialing 421-7200.

Dr. Brehm said 40,000 units of the vaccine arrived in Monroe County Wednesday. It will be distributed as was Type I, on a lump of sugar.

Balloons urging participation in the polio vaccine program were distributed in the business districts of Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg last night.

The third and final vaccine distribution will be held on June 30, when Type II will be administered.

Hours for distribution will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., except at Mt. Pocono where they will be 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Distribution points are the Arlington Heights and Ramsey Elementary Schools in Stroudsburg; J. M. Hill Elementary School East Stroudsburg; Pleasant Valley High School, Broadheadville; Pocono Township Firehouse, Tannersville; Pocono Pines Firehouse, Pocono Lake; Mt. Pocono Firehouse and Barrett Elementary Center, Cresco.

I hereby state that I am the parent or guardian of the minor(s) listed above and I hereby request that Sabin Oral polio vaccine be administered to said above listed minors:

Purchases Out Of State Taxed

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania will step up efforts to collect taxes from residents on purchases made in other states.

Sales tax bureau officials told a news conference they will rely on newspaper advertising, informers and the morality of taxpayers to collect the use taxes on out-of-state purchases.

"We're going to try to educate the people that they are required to pay the use tax," said Donald Murphy, assistant director of the sales tax bureau.

The use tax is due at the same rate as the sales tax on purchases of taxable items made by Pennsylvanians in other states.

The sales and use taxes go up from 4 to 5 per cent as of midnight Friday night.

The officials explained that the new rate applies to the same items with one addition, take home foods from restaurants.

"We're banking heavily on the tax morality of our people to collect the use tax," said Murphy. "Americans, amazingly enough, are honest on tax matters."

But the bureau also will rely on informers to tell of large out-of-state purchases by neighbors and newspaper advertising to explain to Pennsylvanians their responsibility for payment of the use tax.

Air Contest Continued To Monday

STROUDSBURG — Due to an extra inning Memorial Day baseball game radio station WVPO's contest continued until Monday, June 3.

The finalists in the contest are Alex Whitlow of Mount Pocono, John Simms of East Stroudsburg, Zachary Irwin of Scotrun, Robert Lundergan of Delaware Water Gap, and Byron Lichtenberg of Stroudsburg. The finalists' announcements are on the air between 4 and 6 p.m.

Irwin was scheduled to broadcast on Memorial Day following the Yankee baseball game. However, the game lasted 10 innings and took up a total of three hours and twenty minutes of air time. The management of the radio station decided it would not be fair to Irwin to put him on the air at a later hour and rescheduled his appearance for next Monday, 4 to 6 p.m.

The contest is part of WVPO's observance of radio month. The winner will receive a transistor portable radio while the runners-up will each receive an L.P. album.

Listeners may vote for their favorite guest announcer by writing his name on a postcard and mailing it to the radio station. The original deadline for voting was Sunday night but because of Irwin's rescheduling the deadline has been advanced to midnight Tuesday. The winner will be announced on WVPO Wednesday.

U. S. Aid Sought To Back Import Worker Program

FULLERTON, PA. — "We're going to meet with Sen. Hugh Scott next week and try to get government subsidies for garment workers' relocation," Robert Mickus, manager of the State Belt Apparel Contractors Assn., said yesterday.

"The reason we're importing out-of-state girls to train them to be garment workers here," Mickus said, "is that there are no girls in the coal region who can work."

He said that since no women are available in the coal regions, the association has to import them for training. About 40 women were brought here last month and are living at Ye Old Saylor's Inn in Saylorburg.

Mickus said that he wrote a letter to the White House to find out about any programs which might cover the relocation. He added that it might be good for the government to share a part of the $1,000 needed to train each girl.

"Most of the women have relocation problems," he said, "so the subsidies might alleviate rentals for a month or so."

He said that shops in the coal regions now can't get enough women to staff them, and are asking for help. The association brings the girls here and trains them. The Saylorburg group are being trained in the Bangor-Pen Argy area.

He said the government should set up a program whereby any worker might get help if he desires to move to another state or region to help a job problem.

Jobless Lowest In Five Years

HARRISBURG (AP) — Total unemployment dropped to its lowest level in five years this month in Pennsylvania, the state Labor and Industry Department reported Friday.

Department Secretary William P. Young said unemployment as of mid-May was 297,000, a drop of 32,000 from mid-April.

The rate of unemployment also declined, from 7.2 to 6.5 per cent of the civilian work force.

It was the first time unemployment fell below the 300,000 mark since October, 1957, when 273,000 of the work force was jobless.

Young attributed the current decrease to job recalls in the construction, primary metals, textiles and apparel industries.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

Death takes precedence over almost everything else even in a newspaper office: the obituaries come before the birth announcements, a fatal accident before graduation honors. Last night with the announcement of Representative Walter's death and the Pope's condition worsening by the hour, everything was in a state of flux.

Any personal grief has to wait until space has been reassigned, "must" stories moved back to "maybes," and "maybes" to "overset." It is fitting and proper that this should be so, but I take comfort in my little corner where the tributes go to those who can still enjoy them.

At least, I hope there will be tributes to a plenty for Police Chief Travis Seese who today is observing his 35th anniversary of service as a policeman in East Stroudsburg. It is a job to which he has given his constant care and concern and which has grown more complicated with every year. Probably his biggest cause for celebration would be if we all behaved ourselves all weekend.

An unexpected celebration overtook Julia Holloway on her recent birthday trip from which she expected only a quiet rest in the sun. Certainly she didn't expect to be interviewed on television and have her poems read, or to be featured, picture, poetry and all, in The Royal Gazette.

"U. S. Poetess Here Lauds Bermuda in Her Verses" read the big headlines. It was a beautiful big moment for a very little lady, and, besides that, a lot of people bought her book of poems.

Speaking of books, Bob Clark's column on the A. Mitchell Palmer biography brought back lots of memories for another little lady, Mae Kerr. Mrs. Kerr was in the same class with Mitchell in the Stroudsburg schools, and recalled that he had a big sled on which he'd always give her a ride when every night the Sixth Street hill was always full of sleds. It was a very handy arrangement, since she lived in the brick house, now being remodeled, on the corner of Sixth and Sarah where her mother always had popcorn and hot chocolate waiting.

Egg cups on the china shelf? They'll make delightful miniature molds when you want to use aspic for garnishing.

Still "quick as a chipmunk," she is a pet of the establishment and maintains her cheerful outlook: "I never had much money but I hung on to what I had," she said, "and now although some days I feel pretty low physically, I bounce right back and figure I better make the most of what faculties I have left."

She was born in New York City, and has a son, grandchildren, and nine grandchildren, of whom she is very proud.

Stan Kann is an unusual man. Not only does he have names that rhyme . . . he has vacuum cleaners. TWO HUNDRED TEN of them . . . and he isn't a vacuum cleaner salesman. He isn't even a dotting husband who does the cleaning for his wife. He doesn't even have a wife. He's just a bachelor with an unusual hobby.

One of the column's readers has sent me a picture of Mr. Kann seated among some of his 210 vacuum cleaners, and a number of them are really something! One dating from 1890, resembles an ant eater. It's all snout, if you know what I mean, and the housewife created the vacuum by pushing the handle up and down as though she were pumping for water during a drought. Later, in the early 1900s, there was a "magic suction cleaner" the handle of which was held up by a chain. In the picture this looks terribly unwieldy. It also looks as though it had collapsed on the floor from overwork. This being the case, I imagine the housewife in somewhere nearby in an equally tragic condition, for this must really have been quite a machine to haul around. It couldn't possibly have weighed much less than a ton. What's more, it was necessary to "undo" the chain before you could clean under the furniture. By 1922, the manufacturers had made some important strides. Separate paper bags were used to collect the dust, which did away with the shaking out of the dusty fabric bags attached to the machine. Even so, cleaning must have been a chore most women dreaded.

I'm just wondering if some of those obsolete vacuums are still around, and still, heaven forbid, in use! If good fortune hasn't already caused them to break down into worthless junk, I hope for the housewife's sake they will any day. In the meantime, I'd like to invite all women to visit our major appliance department and see the colorful, attractively styled, light-weight Hoovers on display there. They are as easy to use as they are to look upon — and they are decorative and smart, believe me. Why not buy yourself a new Hoover today? — If you're wondering what to do with that old wreck of a cleaner you may have been using since the year 10, contact Mr. Kann. He just might be interested!

Recipes For Putting Those Appliances To Quick Use

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Ruth Sibley told me that she enjoyed my "quick recipes" for the working girls that were in a few weeks ago but they weren't quite quick enough for her! This is one girl who is always on the go because besides being active in community affairs she is also a homemaker, mother of two children, and secretary to Fred Waring at Shawnee Inn.

One of her biggest helps in getting quick meals is using her appliances as they should be used. She's a great one for whipping up a quick dessert for bridge club in her blender, or doing a roast in her pressure cooker.

So for Ruth today, and the rest of you very busy girls, I'm giving you recipes for those appliances. Don't let them sit in the cupboard; use them! Pressure cookers were meant for more than quick cooking of potatoes or vegetables; they can cook a whole meal for you in a matter of minutes.

Hungarian Beef Goulash

2 pounds stewing beef cut in one-inch cubes
In a paper bag, shake cubes with 1/2 cup flour and brown well in hot fat in your pressure cooker. Add to the meat:

1 package dried onion soup mix
2 cups water
1 tablespoon paprika
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon caraway seeds
1 teaspoon marjoram
2 bayleaves
1 teaspoon dried parsley flakes
1/4 cup dry sherry wine (optional)

Put lid on pressure cooker and bring to 15 pound pressure. Reduce heat and maintain pressure for fifteen minutes. Cool cooker immediately under cold water.

Serve goulash on cooked egg noodles.

I wonder how many pressure cookers are obsolete because the owners are afraid to use them? Don't be: if you read the instructions carefully for use of the cooker and follow recipe directions, you don't have to worry about it blowing up. The only thing that can do that is if you would forget to turn the heat down when the pressure is at the desired amount. To practice, put water in your cooker and bring it to ten or fifteen pounds pressure, turn heat down, and "cook" for two or three minutes. This will give you confidence to experiment with foods. Here's a dish to cook in five minutes, and it makes a good summer dish.

Quick German Potato Salad

6 slices bacon, diced
4 medium sized potatoes, diced raw

1 onion, thinly sliced
2 to 3 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon mustard
one-third cup vinegar
2 tablespoons water
2 tablespoons parsley, minced

Brown bacon in bottom of pressure cooker. Pour off surplus drippings. Add raw potato and onion. Add combined sugar, salt, pepper, mustard, vinegar, water and parsley. Mix well. Place cover on cooker. Allow steam to flow from vent pipe to release all air from cooker. Place indicator weight on vent pipe and cook 5 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool cooker immediately under cold water.

Here's a crunchy good dessert you can whip up in your blender in a matter of minutes. Your children will love this, and even company!

MINISINK HILLS DAY CAMP

Well known to many Stroudsburg parents for the excellent care of the children and camp activities, has a few openings for children. For information call 421-9438, or write Mr. Silverwater, Minisink Hills, Pa.

Jiffy Almond Pudding

Place in blender:
1 strip orange rind
2 cups unblanched almonds
Blend until finely ground and combine in a bowl with:

1/2 cup honey
2 tablespoons soft butter
2 cups corn flakes
Refrigerate until serving time; serve with whipped cream.

Did you ever think of using your blender for making cookies? It cuts mixing time in half. These chocolate squares are luscious.

Blender Brownies

Place in blender container:
1/2 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled (2 oz.)
1/2 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Blend smooth. Sift into mixing bowl:
1 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt

Pour liquid mixture into dry ingredients and stir until thoroughly mixed. Pour into shallow greased pan, 10 1/2 by 15 1/2 inches. Sprinkle with:

1/2 cup nuts
1/2 cup coconut

both of which have been chopped a few seconds in the blender. Bake at 350 for 12 minutes or until done. Cool slightly and cut into squares.

Walter Ends 30 Years In Congress

The Daily Record, The Stroudsburg, Pa.—Saturday, June 1, 1963

IT TOOK plenty of persuasion on the part of his Democratic friends to interest Francis E. Walter in being a candidate for Congress back in 1931.

He conceded to run for one term. He had planned to return to his native Easton and resume a lucrative law practice, built as one of Eastern Pennsylvania's most effective criminal attorneys, and legal representative for several of the East's leading industries, including Bethlehem Steel Co.

Walter came to Congress with a vast number of Democrats who had supported Franklin Delano Roosevelt in his successful bid for a first term as President.

Almost immediately, the alert and aggressive Walter fashioned his entire life around politics. In the years that followed, he became a confidant of not only Democrats, but also those in the Republican ranks of Congress, in the House of Representatives and the Senate. Many times in recent years, he was praised on the House floor by his colleagues.

Time magazine called Walter "an astute parliamentarian."

Repeatedly, he presided over controversial legislation such as civil rights, labor laws, etc. Twice he served as Speaker pro tempore of the House of Representatives, Sept. 1, 1960 and Aug. 28, 1961, in the absence of the late Speaker, Sam Rayburn.

And his parliamentary skill was such that when Rayburn died there was a move to name Walter as his successor, but the Congressman refused to run against his old colleague, John McCormack, who was elected.

"When you are right, you don't apologize to anyone." — Tad Walter

Tad had the ear of four Presidents—Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy. Of these, Kennedy was his closest friend, a friendship that developed when they were together in the House of Representatives and their Congressional offices were only steps away.

"He's a fine, brilliant young man with the courage of his convictions," Walter would tell his colleagues when they would discuss President Kennedy. One of Walter's last official acts was to serve as an escort for the President when he gave the State of the Union address last Jan. 14.

The extreme friendship that was enjoyed by both was displayed when President Kennedy made an unscheduled call to Georgetown University Hospital "to visit my old friend, Tad."

Walter's entire life in politics had been devoted to humanitarian aspects as well as the protection of his beloved America.

"Fuzzy thinking liberals" had no place in Walter's life. He never flinched in challenging them when he thought they were trying to soften the world-wide fight against Communism.

"These fuzzy thinking liberals don't know the irreparable damage they are doing to our great country," Walter would say in talks on the House floor, in the committee rooms or before civic and service organizations throughout the United States.

As chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and chairman of the House Subcommittee on Immigration and Nationality, Walter was in demand to speak throughout the country.

He accepted only when sure that such an engagement did not interfere with attendance in the House of Representatives.

Walter's day in Congress started shortly after nine o'clock each morning after an automobile ride to his office from his home.

He immediately launched into meetings and conferences with his staff personnel, committee members, and would-be answering phone calls from persons of all walks of life—map out the day's agenda. His day ended usually about seven o'clock after he read and signed his mail.

Walter hated pussy-footing. He despised those who practiced it. "When you are right, you don't apologize to anyone," was his admonition to his staff.

Tad's first important legislative accomplishment had to be the Administrative Procedures Act (The Walter-Logan Act of 1946) which set up a code of conduct for all Federal agencies. The American Bar Association, in honoring Walter for this piece of legislation, called it "The Bill of Rights in Administrative Procedures."

At the time of his death, Walter was updating the act and preparing hearings for his committee, the Judiciary Subcommittee on Administrative Procedures, of which he was Chairman.

In 1947 President Truman appointed Walter to serve on the post-war planning commission, the Herter Committee. Walter helped to write this Committee's report that later produced the famed Marshall Plan for foreign aid.

In recent debates on the House floor over the Foreign Assistance Act, Walter was its strongest advocate. He told his colleagues the United States policy is "to provide aid and assistance to its people, not to its rulers. Freedom, democracy and republican form of government are all based on people, not rulers. It is among the people that the free world seeks friends and allies, not rulers."

Walter had turned his attention to the displaced persons of the world in 1947. With the late Rep. Frank Fellers, Republican of Maine, Walter co-authored displaced persons laws of 1948 and 1960. These two laws have been responsible for bringing some 400,000 refugees of World War II to the United States.

Walter and the late Sen. Pat McCarran were asked by their Committees of Judiciary to undertake a study in 1962 of the immigration laws of the country. They co-authored the nation's immigration laws, possibly Walter's greatest single legislative accomplishment.

Since then Walter has amended this legislation in order to reunite families and care for refugees who sought a haven here in the United States. Also, Walter literally has presided over thousands of private immigration bills introduced by other members, and has guided their passage through Congress.

The Pennsylvania Democrat promoted and established the Intercontinental Committee on European Migration and presided over the initial meeting of 16 nations of the world at Brussels, Belgium, in 1961. As of November of last year, Walter had attended every semi-annual meeting of the organization which now boasts membership of 30 countries.

The late Speaker, Sam Rayburn, tapped Walter to serve on the House Committee on Un-American Activities in 1949. This is the Committee Walter, in his earlier years, had felt should not be a standing committee of the House of Representatives.

In 1960, Walter became its chairman and in the years that followed he won world-wide recognition for his courage in the fight against Communism.

As chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, Walter had been responsible for strengthening the Internal Security Act, revision of the Smith Act and a wide range of legislation that affects the security laws of this country. He also has served on the Government Security Commission.

For his role as a fighter against Communism and for his humanitarian work in the field of immigration, Walter had received special awards from the Governments of Japan, the Netherlands, and Italy. Only this past week, the Greek government contacted Walter at Georgetown University Hospital to tell him he was to be honored with a citation from that government.

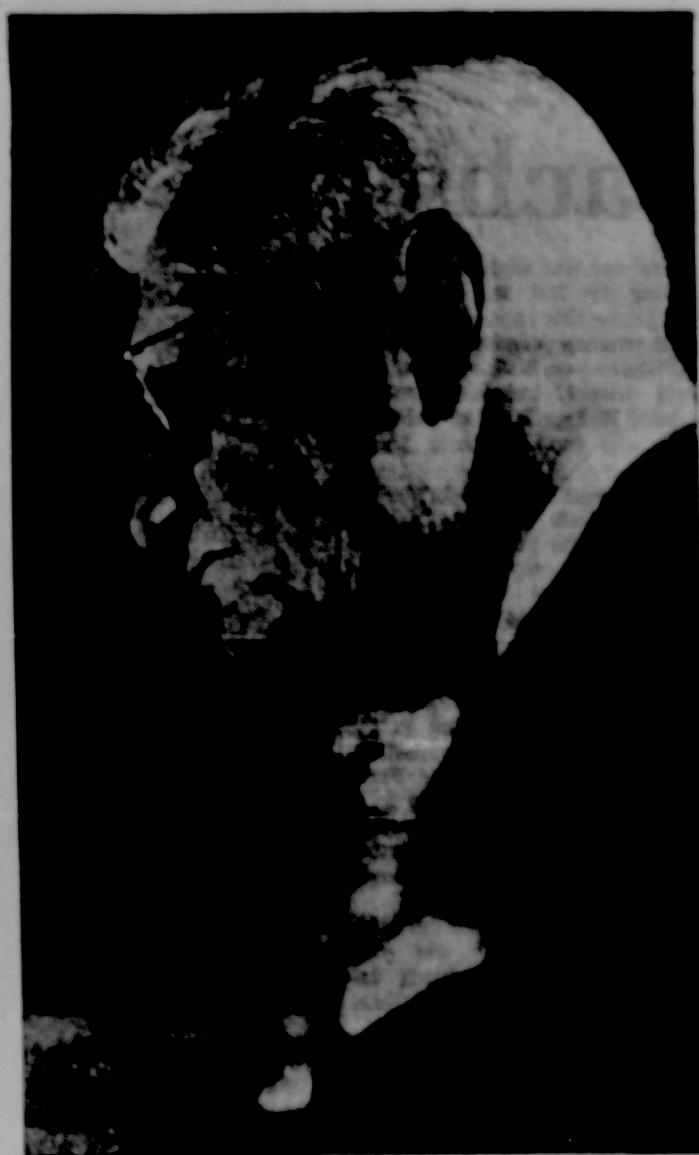

Few, if any, civic, service, and religious groups in this country have not cited Walter for his work in Congress. He also has been honored by all of the veterans' organizations.

The Captive European Nations—the nations behind the Iron Curtain—through their American representatives, gave Walter its annual award, April 13, 1961.

The Captive Nations had selected Walter for "his undaunted courage in fighting Communist encroachments upon the freedom of man and nations, of his human-

Special Election Needed To Fill Walter Vacancy

A SPECIAL ELECTION—probably at the November general election—will be necessary to fill the vacancy caused yesterday by the death of Rep. Francis E. Walter.

Under Pennsylvania's election code, Gov. William W. Scranton must issue a writ of election within 10 days after a U. S. representative vacancy occurs, naming a date for a special election.

The date may be the next primary or municipal election, but shall not be less than 30 days after the issuance of the writ.

Candidates to fill the unexpired term are nominated by political parties in accordance with party rules and by political bodies by means of nomination papers.

Nomination certificates and nomination papers must be filed in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth not later than 10 days after the issuance of the writ of election.

When a death occurs in the U. S. Senate, the governor is empowered to appoint a successor to serve until the next election. He does not have such power in the case of a member of the House of Representatives.

Jersey and Delaware in a federal-state compact to plan for the comprehensive development of the Delaware River Basin area.

On May 18, 1962, the board of directors of the Water Resources Association of the Delaware River Basin cited Walter "for moral leadership and diligence and tenacity in almost singlehandedly guiding passage of the interstate-federal compact for the Delaware River Basin through Congress on Sept. 20, 1961."

Walter, at the time of his fatal illness, had successfully urged the Kennedy Administration to push for a national recreation area in the Delaware River Basin. Walter argued such an area "would bring unlimited economic opportunities to Eastern Pennsylvania."

There is not a hospital, school or college in the 15th District that has not benefited by Walter's intercession for Federal funds and assistance. With the decline of the coal mines and railroads, Walter sought new means of helping the economic ills in the area.

Among his monuments is the framework of the present Area Redevelopment Administration legislation, fought for and won by his close friend, Rep. Daniel J. Flood. An earlier ARA bill, introduced by Walter, was vetoed by President Eisenhower.

Possibly no piece of legislation meant more to Walter than the legislation dealing with supplemental airlines. A crash of a non-scheduled chartered airliner with 29 Army recruits from his Congressional District touched off an independent investigation by Walter of the airline industry and the Defense Department's handling of recruits.

Walter was successful in calling back pending legislation and having it altered drastically to tighten airline regulations. If Walter had not entered the law profession, which he incidentally selected because "there were too many doctors in the family," there is a good chance that he would have made his mark in baseball.

Walter was the son of a physician, Dr. Robley D. Walter, and Susie (Hess) Walter. There were nine physicians—uncles and cousins—in the Walter family and Francis Eugene though "there were just too many doctors around."

He attended George Washington University, from where he received his bachelor of arts degree, and later Georgetown University, where he earned a law degree.

In college and earlier in his scholastic career, at Mercersburg Academy, Walter was considered an outstanding athlete, particularly in football and baseball. While playing semi-professional baseball, Walter was offered contracts by several major league clubs.

One of his early admirers on the baseball field was Rep. Michael K. Kirwan, Democrat of Ohio, who now is chairman of the Democratic Congressional Policy Committee.

"Many a time I watched Tad on the baseball field in Youngstown," Mike was saying recently, "and even then as now in Congress, he showed great courage. I have always admired this fellow."

Walter's return to Easton, after his graduation from George Washington University's School of Law, found him setting a phenomenal record as an attorney.

Almost immediately he was appointed solicitor for Northampton County. He practiced both criminal and civil law, and as defender, he won area-wide acclaim for his oratory and drama. As a civil lawyer, he represented a great number of industries in the area.

His father, who had been a member of the Easton National Bank, turned over to the Congressman his position on the bank board, a position he held until the time of his death.

Walter also was proud of the record set by the Broad Street Trust Co., and its predecessor banks in Philadelphia, of which he was vice president.

The tragedy in Walter's life had to be the sudden death of one of his two daughters, Barbara M. Walter, McGarry, on Nov. 15, 1966. The Congressman set up numerous memorials to his daughter, at his home church, St. John's Lutheran, in Easton, and at his daughter's college, Moravian Seminary in Bethlehem. Another daughter, Constance M., wife of William Mack, lives in Chevy Chase, Md.

Spilled Oil Complaint Starts It

Post-500 Fist Fight Erupts Between Jones And Sachs

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A fist fight between 500-mile race winner Parnelli Jones and perennial contender Eddie Sachs of Allentown erupted Friday over Sachs' complaint that oil spilled by Jones' car caused Sachs to spin into the wall.

The drivers, both two-time pole winners for the Memorial Day race, scuffled and fell to the floor before about 75 witnesses at a luncheon for drivers and race officials.

Jones, a 25-year-old speedster from Torrance, Calif., and Sachs were chatting near a bar at the Holiday Inn, near the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, when Sachs again brought up the oil charges.

Witnesses said both men called the other a liar as the dispute became louder. Crew-cut Jones blurted:

"You call me a liar again and I'll bust you right in the mouth."

"All right, you're a liar," the angry Sachs retorted.

Jones bristled, clenched his fist and smashed the 36-year-old Detroit driver in the face. Swinging, both men fell to the floor and grappled briefly before spectators broke them up.

Jones was unmarked, but Sachs' mouth puffed up and he got up dabbing at his face with a handkerchief.

A newsman standing near the pair heard Sachs mention something about two questionable finishes in a row in the Memorial Day race.

Neither driver had been drinking.

Jones, the pole winner at record speed the last two years, drove nearly the last half of the 1962 race without brakes on the same Agajanian Special in which he won this year. Jones finished seventh.

Sachs spun out on the 181st lap of Thursday's 200-lap grind, and a wheel came off. Just five laps earlier, he had spun into the infield and his yellow Bryant Special brushed a guard rail.

500 Pole

Chief steward Halan Fongler had called Sachs out of the luncheon party and fined him $100 for failing to observe the rule requiring a driver to come into the pits for an inspection of his car after it has contacted another object.

The fight between the two crowd-pleasing drivers capped a day of bitter wrangling over a small oil leak sprung by Jones' car near the end of the race.

Fongler, the U.S. Auto Club official who has charge of the running of the race, was in the center, since he would have been the one to order Jones black-flagged—called into the pits for consultation and an inspection of his car.

Fongler said the leak from Jones' car was slight and stopped during the last few laps. "You can't take this race away from a man on snap judgment," he said.

Fongler won backing from several drivers, including two-time winner Roger Ward of Indianapolis, who finished fourth Thursday.

Ward, who has been in the top four finishers for five straight years, said he felt the chief steward "did the only thing he could do."

Finished 17th

Sachs, who was in the top ten during much of the race, ended up in 17th spot in the 33-car field.

Also becoming involved in the controversy was Scott Newhall, executive editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who wrote in a front page editorial Friday that Jones had an extra crewman—"the starter with his kit of magic flags."

Newhall, who attended the race, alleged that Jones' win was "manipulated" by stewards because he was allowed to continue running.

He said the California driver "was probably entitled to a comfortable second place" behind Jim Clark, Duns, Scotland, who actually finished 34 seconds behind Jones in a Lotus-Ford.

"Clark and his Lotus-Ford were not members of the establishment and Jones and his classic Indy roadster were members in exceptionally good standing," Newhall wrote.

"Different Race"

Wayne Fusan, associate sports editor of the Indianapolis News, replied in a front-page article Friday. "To other observers it might appear the San Francisco writer watched a different race than they did."

Fusan said the Californian "didn't bother to check with Clark and Colin Chapman of England, designer of the car, both of whom congratulated Jones after the race."

Chapman said, "It would have been a shame to call in Jones."

Benson Ford, vice president of Ford Motor Co., which built the power plant for Clark's rear-engine racer, told Fongler, "We were delighted with the race outcome, and I believe that is the finest decision you could have made."

No Protest

Neither Sachs nor other drivers who complained about oil on the track filed a formal protest before the deadline Friday morning.

Fongler said there were other cars with small oil leaks on the 2 1/2-mile track at the end of the grueling race.

But Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., who was running in third place when he spun into the wall on the next-to-last lap, joined Sachs in blaming Jones.

Jones said:

"There's no doubt I did put a little oil on the track. But most of the oil that got out did not go on the track but on the exhaust, and that's where the puffs of smoke came from."

IF YOU CAN HIT, run and throw there is a good chance that you will advance up the baseball ladder. Major league scouts look for these things in all young players. They call it ability.

You may not be the best on your team at these three essentials. You may feel that size is holding you back. You must get that thought out of your head.

Think positive by trying to show more desire, more hustle. This is where the little man comes in. I believe it's tougher for the big man or big boy to outthrust the little fellow.

Had Desire

I like to think the Yankees saw that I had desire at an early age. I wasn't quite 18 when I reported as a shortstop to Olean, N.Y., in 1953. I hit .412 in 32 games and they promoted me to Norfolk, Va. I hit .211 in 27 games. I wasn't quite ready, and they knew I didn't have the arm to become a good shortstop.

Jones' car was slight and stopped during the last few laps. "You can't take this race away from a man on snap judgment," he said.

Fongler won backing from several drivers, including two-time winner Roger Ward of Indianapolis, who finished fourth Thursday.

Ward, who has been in the top four finishers for five straight years, said he felt the chief steward "did the only thing he could do."

Sachs, who was in the top ten during much of the race, ended up in 17th spot in the 33-car field.

Also becoming involved in the controversy was Scott Newhall, executive editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, who wrote in a front page editorial Friday that Jones had an extra crewman—"the starter with his kit of magic flags."

Newhall, who attended the race, alleged that Jones' win was "manipulated" by stewards because he was allowed to continue running.

He said the California driver "was probably entitled to a comfortable second place" behind Jim Clark, Duns, Scotland, who actually finished 34 seconds behind Jones in a Lotus-Ford.

"Clark and his Lotus-Ford were not members of the establishment and Jones and his classic Indy roadster were members in exceptionally good standing," Newhall wrote.

Wayne Fusan, associate sports editor of the Indianapolis News, replied in a front-page article Friday. "To other observers it might appear the San Francisco writer watched a different race than they did."

Fusan said the Californian "didn't bother to check with Clark and Colin Chapman of England, designer of the car, both of whom congratulated Jones after the race."

Chapman said, "It would have been a shame to call in Jones."

Benson Ford, vice president of Ford Motor Co., which built the power plant for Clark's rear-engine racer, told Fongler, "We were delighted with the race outcome, and I believe that is the finest decision you could have made."

Neither Sachs nor other drivers who complained about oil on the track filed a formal protest before the deadline Friday morning.

Fongler said there were other cars with small oil leaks on the 2 1/2-mile track at the end of the grueling race.

But Roger McCluskey, Tucson, Ariz., who was running in third place when he spun into the wall on the next-to-last lap, joined Sachs in blaming Jones.

Jones said:

"There's no doubt I did put a little oil on the track. But most of the oil that got out did not go on the track but on the exhaust, and that's where the puffs of smoke came from."

Big Racing Card Scheduled Today

The Californian, first of Hollywood Park's summer parade of $100,000 stakes, and the $75,000 Mother Goose at Aqueduct headline a big Saturday for thoroughbred racing.

Thirteen older horses were named for the 1-16-mile Californian, including Vicgray Farm's New Zealand-bred Cadiz, 1962 winner, and Alberta Ranch's Four-and-Twenty. Miss Eleanor's Sears' Spicy Living heads a field of 15 3-year-old fillies in the 1 1/4-mile Mother Goose.

Fred W. Hooper's Crozier and Lionel Sternberger's Doc Jockey are absent because of ailments, leaving Four-and-Twenty the top weight under 123 pounds. Cadiz is next with 119, with the weights based on money won in stakes.

Vista Hermosa Stable's Crazy Kid, Hooper's Winonly, Harpie and Rablero all carry 115.

The Californian will be the richest running with a gross of $233,800 and $77,800 for the winner.

Ford Blanks Cleveland On 3-Hitter

CLEVELAND (AP) — Whitey Ford, New York's ace left-hander, fired a three-hitter Friday night and Tom Tresh and Elston Howard belted two-run homers as the Yankees blanked the Cleveland Indians 4-0.

The 34-year-old southpaw pitcher walked four and struck out eight in winning his sixth game in nine decisions.

Tresh hammered his eighth homer into the right field stands in the third inning after shortstop Dick Howser made an error on Bobby Richardson's grounder. Howard's eighth homer, over the right field fence, scored Joe Pepitone, who had singled in the eighth inning.

Richardson Stresses Team Play

In the spring of 1954 the Yankees asked me to attend their Florida instructional school. While there the late George Steinweiss taught me the fundamentals of playing second base, such as charging a ball how to lob an underhand throw to the shortstop and how to smother a hard hit ball and still get the runner going to first.

That season I played every inning of every game for Binghamton, N.Y., and played the next two seasons under Ralph Houk, our present manager, at Denver.

My last year at Denver, in 1956, I teamed up with Tony Kubek. The next year we both went up to the Yankees to stay and with the exception of last year, when Tony was in the Army, we have been together on and off the field. On the road we are roommates.

Because Tony had more power and could play any outfield position, he got in more games. I played only 73 as a rookie and hit .247. I sat on the bench half the time. This was a despondent time for me. I was even thinking about quitting baseball.

But Jerry Coleman, among others, explained that I had to be patient, that this was a team game and a 25-man team.

"Just give your best, even in practice," Jerry would say. "Be ready, and if you have the ability and desire your time will come."

That's exactly what happened even though the Yankees had good second basemen available. Besides Coleman we had Gil McDougald. And Billy Martin was in the Army. All had experience over me. But when Gil got hurt I took his place. When he recovered he moved back into the lineup at third base and played there regularly.

Remembers Coleman

I'll never forget Coleman. We were fighting for the same posi-

PMBL Resumes Action Sunday

THE co-leaders of the Pocono Mountain Baseball League — Stroudsburg and West End — resume action tomorrow in league activity along with the other entries following the Memorial Day card Thursday.

Stroudsburg's A's play host to Reelers, losers of four of their last five contests, while West End travels to Saylorsburg. The Lakers have won only one game in six starts thus far.

The first-place tie was created on the holiday card when West End gained a 6-3 decision over the A's who had not yet been beaten before that game. Both teams now stand at 5-1 for the campaign.

In the other loop battle tomorrow, Bowmanstown (2-4) meets Bushkill (3-3) on the latter's field. Bushkill currently is holding down second place behind the two leaders with their .500 record, which places them two games off the pace. Reelers and owans-town are three games back and

Candy Spots Is Set For Belmont

NEW YORK (AP) — Candy Spots, favorite for the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes June 8 at Aqueduct, arrived at the track Friday noon from Garden State Park, where he won the $121,000 Jersey Derby on Memorial Day.

The California colt owned by Rex Ellsworth and trained by Mesh Tenney was upset in the Kentucky Derby, but has won four other rich races for 3-year-olds this season—the Santa Anita Derby, Florida Derby, Preakness and the Jersey Derby.

He has won eight of his nine starts, all three in 1962 and five of six this season.

Bucs Bop Mets On Lynch's HR

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Schwall doled out only four singles and Jerry Lynch rapped a two-run homer in the seventh inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates overcame the New York Mets 2-0 Friday night.

Carl Willey matched scoreless innings with Schwall through the sixth, but in the seventh the Met right-hander gave up a walk to Bill Mazeroski and Lynch followed with his homer into the Polo Grounds' upper right field seats. The hit was only the third off Willey, who had retired 11 Pirates in order before the walk to Mazeroski.

Lynch's homer was his fourth of the season and his second since coming back to the Pirates last week in a trade after six years with Cincinnati.

Wynn's Goal Nears

CLEVELAND (AP) — Early Wynn, a burly 43-year-old right-hander, may get a chance yet to reach his goal of 300 major league pitching victories.

General Manager Gabe Paul announced Friday that Wynn had agreed to terms with the Cleveland Indians and would arrive here Monday to start workouts. Wynn and Manager Birdie Tebbets will decide when the veteran hurler is to be placed on the Tribe's active roster, Paul said.

Wynn was only one shy of victory No. 300 when the 1962 season ended after falling in three tries for the magic win.

In 13 innings with the Chicago White Sox during spring training he permitted only one run and two hits, but the Sox gave him his unconditional release. He has been undergoing a physical conditioning program at his home in Venice, Fla., hoping to get back into baseball.

Wynn's record is 299 victories and 227 losses in a major league career that started in 1941 with the Washington Senators. He came to the Indians from the Senators in December 1948. He won 163 games while losing 100 for the Tribe before being traded to the White Sox following the 1957 season.

Wynn's immediate goal is to enter the charmed circle of pitchers with 300 or more major league victories, but he says he doesn't see why he couldn't pitch a couple of more seasons.

He had five seasons in which he won 20 or more games—four of them with the Indians. He had a 22-10 record with the pennant-winning White Sox in 1959 and won one game while losing one in the World Series against the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Johnson Is Big Favorite In Title Go

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—World light heavyweight champion Harold Johnson of Philadelphia remained a heavy favorite Friday to retain his title in a 15-round fight with Willie Pastrano of North Miami Beach, Fla., Saturday night.

he contest will be televised nationally over the ABC network, starting at 7 p.m., Pacific Daylight Time.

It will mark the second defense of the title for Johnson since he gained undisputed claim to it by whipping Doug Jones in Philadelphia May 12, 1962, and the fifth since he stopped Jesse Bowdrie in New York in 1961 for what was then National Boxing Association recognition.

A less than capacity crowd of around 6,000, including heavy-weight champion Sonny Liston, is expected to watch the affair in person.

The 34-year-old Johnson was still listed the betting favorite at 4-1, with not too much action reported in Las Vegas' legal gambling salons.

The match is important for both fighters, particularly the 28-year-old Pastrano. It's his first title opportunity in his 13 years of boxing.

Johnson, in 81 matches, has lost but seven and boxed four draws. He has scored 32 knockouts and been knocked out four times. But he has not lost a fight since 1955, when he boxed Julio Mederos.

Pastrano, in 83 contests, has been whipped 17 times and registered 12 knockouts but has never been knocked off his feet.

His one knockout loss was a technical one in eye cuts with Brian London in 1958.

WILLIE Shoemaker made it two straight Garden State Stakes when he scored with George D. Widener's Creamman. Shoe won the 1961 running with Crimson Satan.

Tom Malone Leaves Shadow Of Snead - - And Enjoys It

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — When Tom Malone worked as an assistant to Sam Snead he played only two rounds of golf a week. Even then it was an effort to fit in his rounds late in the afternoon while vacationers were taking pre-dinner naps.

Now that Malone has stepped out of Snead's shadow he plays five times a week as head pro at the Palm Aire Country Club. The story around here is that Malone, who began as a caddy at West Brighton, Staten Island, N.Y., once beat Snead and from then on Snead made sure Malone stayed in the pro shop at Boca Raton.

Malone played a few rounds with Terry and was amazed that baseball players could score so well after working out three hours on hard diamonds. But the one thing that bugs Malone, 33, is the fact that he would like to win a professional golf tournament. Now that he's his own boss and no longer operates in Sam Snead's shadow he has plenty of chances to sharpen up his game.

by one stroke in the Atlanta sectional qualifying round for the National Open.

He holds the course record at Palm Aire with a 64. Snead shot a 65. But they played from different tees at the 7,120-yard par 72 layout that adjoins the Pompano Park harness training grounds.

Malone, who won several junior titles, also won three Rhode Island Naval District titles in four attempts. When the major league baseball players were training near here — the Yankees were three miles away at Fort Lauderdale and the Senators five miles to the northeast — Malone got a chance to meet Mickey Mantle, Ralph Terry, Whitey Ford, Bill Stafford and Clete Boyer of the Yankees.

Malone won't admit to conquering his former boss. "Sam once had a 70 and I shot 71," is about as much as Malone cares to say about the old slammer. "I worked with Snead six years and we're still friends."

Malone was Staten Island's amateur champion in 1954 and 1955 and that gave him the urge to become a pro. Now he craves tournament competition. He is consistent if nothing else. In the last three years he missed out JOCKEY Earle Sande made eight tries in the Preakness and his one victory came astride Galt Fox in 1959.

Smith To Play In British Amateur Despite Injury

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, (AP) —Big Charlie Smith of Gastonia, N.C., defied an aching back and a worried surgeon Friday and played a round at St. Andrews, adding one more American threat in next week's British Amateur Golf Championship.

"I'll play if it kills me," the 32-year-old automobile dealer said as he walked off the 18th green with a score he kept to himself. It was quite a feat for Smith who had to drop out of the Walker Cup matches at Turnberry last week and consult a London specialist.

Smith plays Martin Douglas of Scotland in his first-round match. The eight Walker Cup Americans, heavily favored as individuals, played Friday with mostly average performances. They admitted they were starting to find some of St. Andrews' famous trouble spots. Exceptions were Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., and U.S. amateur champion Labron Harris of Stillwater, Okla., whose 72 included 26 putts.

The original 256 entries for the marathon match play Monday through Saturday were reduced to 250 by scratches for which alternates were not available and byes were granted.

The entire U.S. contingent sympathized with Smith. He has been the hard luck guy of American amateur golf. Two years ago he lost the only

Walker Cup match the British won at Seattle, beaten by Martin Christman. At Turnberry he was not playing well and was dropped from the first day's foursomes. In the singles he managed only a half with Michael Lust.

Richard Tufts, U. S. Walker cup team captain, stuck by him, though, on the second day until Smith stumbled off the practice tee in pain.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the A's said he had received authorization from Joe Cronin, American League president, to have the balls autographed for Kansas City's home games.

Finley explained that fans who recover foul balls often seek a player's autograph after the game. "Now he'll have a pre-game autographed ball," Finley said.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, (AP) —Big Charlie Smith of Gastonia, N.C., defied an aching back and a worried surgeon Friday and played a round at St. Andrews, adding one more American threat in next week's British Amateur Golf Championship.

"I'll play if it kills me," the 32-year-old automobile dealer said as he walked off the 18th green with a score he kept to himself. It was quite a feat for Smith who had to drop out of the Walker Cup matches at Turnberry last week and consult a London specialist.

Smith plays Martin Douglas of Scotland in his first-round match. The eight Walker Cup Americans, heavily favored as individuals, played Friday with mostly average performances. They admitted they were starting to find some of St. Andrews' famous trouble spots. Exceptions were Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C., and U.S. amateur champion Labron Harris of Stillwater, Okla., whose 72 included 26 putts.

The original 256 entries for the marathon match play Monday through Saturday were reduced to 250 by scratches for which alternates were not available and byes were granted.

The entire U.S. contingent sympathized with Smith. He has been the hard luck guy of American amateur golf. Two years ago he lost the only

Walker Cup match the British won at Seattle, beaten by Martin Christman. At Turnberry he was not playing well and was dropped from the first day's foursomes. In the singles he managed only a half with Michael Lust.

Richard Tufts, U. S. Walker cup team captain, stuck by him, though, on the second day until Smith stumbled off the practice tee in pain.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the A's said he had received authorization from Joe Cronin, American League president, to have the balls autographed for Kansas City's home games.

Auto Club Sets Inspection Date

STROUDSBURG—The Ridge Runners Auto Club will hold an auto inspection at the club house Tuesday starting at 7:30 p.m.

The club also set tentative plans at their regular meeting this week to start a savings account toward the building of a garage and purchase of land in the near future.

A work committee also will be organized to remodel the club house on the inside.

It was also announced that club members are planning to attend the Record Day at Great Meadows (N. J.) drag strip June 16.

Wins Tennis Award

PENNSBURG — Tom Veety, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Veety of Stroudsburg, was one of the junior varsity tennis award recipients at the Perkiomen School.

LARRY Bailey of Towamencin, Pa., and Eric Weber of Buffalo are both 6-foot-6 and the tallest players on the Spruce basketball team. They are sophomores.

NOTRE Dame's five home football games in 1962 attracted a total of 251,833 fans.

Bim is a clown—that is his business. He can always do the wrong thing at the right time.

But Bim is no fool. Out of the circus ring he always tries to do the right thing at the right time. Those winter Sundays in Florida, before the show goes on the road, you might sit next to Bim in church, and never know he is a clown.

And even though on the road, when Sunday is moving day, Bim gets out his old worn Bible and his teacher's guide, and with his own kids, and with all the other "show" kids gathered 'round him, there is Sunday School on the circus train.

You see, Bim is a Christian, living his faith through all the complications of a strange occupation. He is not a mask—he is Bim. He is the churchman of a circus train—the Sunday School teacher of show business. He knows when to put fun and frolic aside, and turn to the Truth by which we live!

The Church invites you and your family to worship next Sunday and every Sunday.
